Says That as Education Increases Crime Decreases An Indian and Negro Graduate of the School Also Tell of the Work It Has Done for Its Races.

"Industrial Education for Negroes" was the subject of discussion at the meeting held in behalf of the Hampton Institute at the Broadway Tabernacle yesterday afternoon. The speakers were Charles Doxon, an Onondaga Indian, who was graduated from the institution in 1889; Commander Robert R. Moton, another graduate of Hampton Institute; H. B. Frissell, its president, and Booker T. Washington. The building was packed to the

Mr. Doxon said that the opinion that the Indian goes back to his blanket and campfire after having received an education was wrong. Eighty per cent. of those who have been graduated from the higher educational institutions are earning their living at respectable occupations After March 4 of next year, he said, the five civilized tribes will become American citizens, and the other tribes will soon have Commander Moton said that his ancestors six generations ago had been sold into this country as slaves. But he did not object to that, for his ancestors held slaves themselves. But he was glad that his people were brought to America and caught the American spirit. The negro got more benefit from slavery than his white master, he thought, for here the black man learned three things of inestimable value, the English language, a thirst for knowledge and their first glimmerings of Christianity.

He was very frank about the negro problem. How to reconcile the negro, matured in passions, but still a child in all other respects, with the whites was a problem to tax the ingenuity of the wisest. President Frissell spoke of the small beginnings of Hampton and added:

Elementary and industrial education and moral development are what the negro needs. We have sixteen workshops, two farms and suitable arrangements for teaching domestic economy. No girl can be graduated who cannot make her own clothes, cook a good meal or teach those clothes, cook a good meal or teach those still in the depths of ignorance.

"The influence of the school has spread through the whole country. It was through us that manual training got its first great impetus. In thirty-three counties more than so per cent. of the negro farmers own and manage their own farms. Crime is almost unknown. The relations between the whites and blacks are extremely good. Last year five times as many applied for admission as we could take care of."

Booker T. Washington was greeted with vigorous applause. He said in part:

The colored people at the close of the civil war thought that their work was over. The real work of the race is just beginning.

We often hear it said that the negro does not advance morally in proportion to the education he has received. He may have been more perfect in slavery than he is now, but we have no way of proving it. He was simply shut in as the prisoners in Sing Sing Would you call them moral when they Again, they say the more education the

Let the lynching stand as a gauge of crime. Where the best educated negroes are there is the least lynching. In 1902 there were 265 bynchings and burnings. In the last twelve months there have been only sixty-five. In recent years there has been much dis-

sion over what is termed the inefficiency of negro labor in the South. As you perhaps know, I have never failed to criticise frankly any weakness in my own race, but the pubc has been misinformed on the subject.

While there is too large a class of idlers in the large cities, the great mass of our people, especially in the country districts, work hard It will be hard to find any other class to take their places. It is not so much the inefficiency colored labor as it is the scarcity of it Many overlook the fact that during the last twenty years the South has more than trebled its industrial growth, and while this immense increase has been taking place in its in-dustrial operations the South, unlike the North and West, has depended almost wholly upon a natural increase in its population to man these increased industries.

Any one who has had direct experience with the negro as a laborer will tell you that there are few classes of laborers anywhere who under the same circumstances and sur-roundings will give better service in the same class of work as is true of the black man of h outh.

The demand for graduates comes from mong our own people for teachers in the classroom, teachers of agriculture and other industries, and for leadership and guidance in many directions. Almost as pressing is white people in the South for the services of our men and women to take charge of farms dairies and other industries.

"I speak not as a Southerner, but as a typical American," said Mr. Dixon, "I speak with no rancor or ill feeling. I simply desire to do the negro justice, to belp solve his terrible problem and to point out to you the solution which I believe to be the best one.

"I believe with Abraham Lincoln, whom I truly consider the greatest American that ever lived, when he said 'There is a physical difference between the white and black races which makes it impossible that they ever should assimilate the other or live on terms of equality."

"And believing this I say the only and best solution is peaceful colonization, such as Abraham Lincoln himself planned and which plan was interrupted by his tragic end.

"I do not believe this scheme is theory. I think it can be done. I think that in fifty years the 9,000,000 of negroes on this continent could be brought into ome distinct country where they could have a law, a literature, a life, a flag of

MISINFORMED SPOOK.

Says He Is Dr. Hodgson and Confuses Dr. Funk's Wife With His Mother. Boston, Jan. 28 .- F. A. Wiggin, mejum, announced at a séance here on Saturday night that a spirit calling himself Dr. Richard Hodgson desired to send this message to Dr. I. K. Fink of New York:

"I have a message to send to Dr. Funk of Funk & Wagnalls, New York, publishers. It will convince him of the truth of spiritualism, and if he reveals it it will convince others. Since coming to the spirit world I have met a beautiful woman. She was his earthly companion. Tell him I had no possible knowledge of how she died. Tell the doctor his wife in the spiritual world still loves him. And to convince him tell him what she told me and I am sure I am not deceived. If she had not climbed to fix those fixtures at the top of the window and had a fall she would be still in her earthly identity."

When the alleged message from Dr. Hodgson was read to Dr. Funk last night Hodgson was read to Dr. Funk last night the publisher said:

"That doesn't interest me at all. Whoever got the message or the information on which to base it is evidently somewhat mixed up. My wife never had a fall from a ladder. She died about thirty-five years ago and under entirely different circumstances. But my mother, in arranging some window draperies, stepped on a needle and her death was the result. That

"Dr. Hodgson was a great student of psychical matters and really formed the Boston Society of Psychical Research over twenty years ago. He spent a great deal of time in investigating spiritual matters and such phenomena. The society under his direction employed detectives to watch mediums, and as a result of these investigations a large amount of data on the subject was collected Dr. William James subject was collected Dr. Whitam James of Harvard, an eminent student of such matters, joined in this work with Dr. Hodgson. Dr. Hodgson died on December 20 and there has been great speculation among certain people in Boston as to whether he would be heard from in the spiritual world. The Boston newspecular hear them the metter up and this papers have taken the matter up and this is but the natural result of this recent curiosity and agitation. Ryan paid something like $300 in fines, &c., and soon afterward preferred charges against Alderman Sheridan.

Ryan arrived in Amsterdam a day or two ago from Troy and gave Chief of Police Bartlett a list of names of those whom he wanted subporned, including two Aldermen, Frank J. Parmentier and Thomas Humler. It had been rumored that Ryan had left for parts unknown but he says he will press his charges to the end. Alderman Sheridan has also subporned several witnesses. The Aldermen at first voted to have the investigation conducted behind closed doors but the public made, so much objection that it was voted by the council to have the investigation public. PLAGUE OF GULLS IN THE PARK

THEY'RE KILLING ALL THE FISH IN THE RESERVOIR.

Thousands of Them Float on the Water or Hover Over It-Fish Needed to Purify Water-Seafowl Have Been There Two Weeks-May Have to Be Shooed Away

The Central Park authorities have had their attention called to the extraordinary number of sea gulls that have resorted to the upper reservoir during the past two weeks. A curious visitor to the park who happened to observe the birds wanted to know if their presence in such numbers was not injurious to the city's drinking water.

The watchmen at the reservoir are wondering where all the birds come from. It is estimated that several thousands have been flying about the reservoir. Director Smith sent Head Kee per Billy Snyder up there yesterday to take a look at the gulls. Snyder reported that there was a closely packed mob of the birds in the centre of the reservoir reaching from one end to the other.

For several years past there have been gulls there winter and summer, but never before more than a dozen or so at a time. The men who guard the reservoir say the birds have come in from Long Island Sound and from the bay. The fine fishing in the reservoir probably attracted them. It is said that since the passage of the law a few years ago prohibiting the killing of gulls they have greatly increased in number.

No objection has been made to a few of the passage of

of them making their home on the reservoir, but the large numbers now there make the matter serious. It is not a de-sirable condition from a sanitary point of view to have thousands of large birds make a rookery of the reservoir. Besides the gulls are fine fishermen and are de the glins are line insertine and are depleting the bass, perch, roach, pickerel and other useful fish that help purify the city's drinking water.

"It is necessary to have fish in the reservoir if we want good water," one of the watchmen said yesterday. "This is especially true in summer when the fish catch all the insects that fall into the reservoir of the same catch all the insects that fall into the reservoir in the same catch all the insects that fall into the reservoir in the same catch all the insects that fall into the reservoir in the same catch all the insects that fall into the reservoir in the same catch all the insects that fall into the reservoir in the same catch all the insects that fall into the reservoir in the same catch all the insects that fall into the reservoir in the same catch all the insects the same catch all t

There is a lot of matter in the water that would cause trouble to the people who drink it if it were not for the fish. There won't be many fish left if this army of gulls is allowed to remain here. Of course the allowed to remain here. Of course the eels won't be caught, for they stay down on the bottom, but they're not as useful as the bullheads, the sunfish and other kinds that come to the surface for food. It was two weeks ago that the birds began to visit the park reservoir in large numbers. The first comers probably left the rough waters of the Sound and ocean and they spread the tidings of the good fishing grounds and brought others. The birds do not alight on the park lake where the swans, geese and wild and tame ducks are floating about. Nor do any of them visit the park
